Web Development > Template Development

For some companies with little or no budget, or companies with an existing development staff, but no internal design capabilities, BuzzBoltMEDIA can provide a template built in HTML or the WYSIWYG web software of your choice, such as Microsoft® FrontPage™ or Macromedia® DreamWeaver™.

You would receive three screen shots of a typical page in your web site, that identifies all navigation possibilities, type styles, and content layouts. A number of iterations are available to let you refine the interface to your exact needs. The interface would then be re-created in the software of your choice and delivered for use by your internal staff to build out the web site.

Because of our ability to develop user-friendly interfaces that are professionally designed, companies who do their own build-out start with a professional look and feel to their project that integrates well with the rest of the off-line corporate branding.
